The Bowling Green Democrat to-day has a efrong article from a very prominent citizen here in favor of offering the Louisville and, Naturille Raffrond - boust to lead their shape at this place, which is highly approved by all our property holders.

This suit is brought by a certain Amanda, Craig, a school marm of Chichmati, against one Sprague, a rich shoddytis of Chiengo. Amanda is represented as being soft and plaintive, a little touched with melancholy, and brows zours. She is not yet twenty-lave years of age. Sprague is fifty-two and no beauty either—a little, dumpy, dried-up, bandy-legged chap, with a bird of gray-baard on his chin. The indelicacies of this little was well all not repeat but the letters "what we on an chin. The indelicacies of this was we shall not repeat; but the letters with we give below are simply amusing and sentimental, and may be read by the most fastellous. Closing Out Sale. Ladies, Attention

The Gazette says that we showed "that Cincinnati has no chance for the South western trade," and that we admitted "that Louisville is out of its line." We did ridicitle the idea of the Gazette's going to Nashville and Stevenson to compete for the Southwestern husiness after it has passed already into the hands of a competing road 818 miles nearer to New York We do not go to Stevenson to compete with the Virginia Air-line and the Memphis and Charleston road; we go, to the Fountain head—to Memphis. Our chances there are exceedingly good, and our roads command a very large proportion of the Southwestern business coveted so much by the Gazette. But the new Cincinnati road cannot expect te get any of it at Nashville or at Stevenson, as we have shown more fully in Gazette, which holds this opinion: "That a direct road from Cincinnati to Nashville will not permit any circuitous and mixed water-and-rail line to divide the business with it." We would be glad to see this demonstrated for the aske of the existing all-rail line; but, before it is demonstrated, we must be allowed to doubt the assessment.

relief and Nashville road, with which the position; he did not choose him been you did to run perallet. This forms, certainly, a more reliable basis than the wild guesses of enthusiastic railroad projectors based on no facts at all. If the Gazette were to undertake to build a road parallel to the Little- Miami railroad it would be sale in assuming that the new road would not de more business than the old road—but only a proportion of it. Ten years of operation of the Louisville and Nashville railroad ought to be a fair and just criterion of what business is going out from or coming into Nashville from the direction in which that road runs. The volume of business which can be drawn through Nashville in the direction of Clirannati, is by this time well ascertained, and may be considered stationary or nearly so, until the gradual development of the country—a slow process—will increase the same, or the construction of rival lines will diminish it.

The Gazette is evidently dimbassed—with the position; he did not choose him be cause it was through that he would be seen taken for the reason that he was loatined for the reason, that instead of being acceptable to the people, oh no, that never a seep taken for the reason, that instead of being acceptable to the people, oh no, that never a two as taken for the reason, that instead of being acceptable to the people, oh no, that never a two as taken for the reason, that instead of being acceptable to the people, oh no, the news asken for the reason that he was loatine for the reason that he was loatine for the reason, that instead of being acceptable to the people, oh no, that never a see that for the reason, that instead of being acceptable to the people, oh no, that never a two thought that he was loatine, the first for the reason that he was loatine, the was loatine, the people, oh no, that never a two thought that he was loatine, the first for the reason that it would be sale in assumble to the people, oh no, that never a two thought to being acceptable to the people,

The Gazette is evidently displeased with the Commercial for reprinting the views we expressed, because the Commercial is "wholly unconscious that it demolishes the Knoxylle and Chattaneoga project," in fact "il.wo take the Couranza-Journal." and vice it leaves us not a pag to sized on either at Mashville, Knoxylle, or Chattaneoga. We hardly think that such a molecule conclusion can be drawn from our argument, but will express our views on the Chattaneoga and Knoxylle terminion a future occasion. But suppose the Gazette was right, and that we could clearly demonstrate that the expenditure of principal and the Gazette be angry with its contemporary or with us, because by our superior knowledge and information we have saved the city of Chechnati in morrhous burden of anxation.

We had hoped thus the Chechnati Gazette in commenting upon our article would have stated our argument with more fathers and have not the issue with more fathers and have not the issue with more and control of the commenting upon our article would have stated our argument with more fathers and have not the issue with more and have not the insue with more and have not not Radical Refusal to Indorse Grant. We have repeatedly called attention to the fact that most of the Radical leaders and organs, far, from indowsing Grant's course as President, express their disasti-taction with him, some of them openly and boldly and others rather timidly. We have omitted however to allude to the striking circumstance that even the Ken tucky Radical Convention which met las

Their silence is a expressive and emphatic as any language could be. They have relied greatly upon Grant to hold them up in their politics weakness, but they evidently despair of his ability even to hold himself up, and so simply endorsing the principles upon which they claim that he was elected, they are content to let his administration shift for itself, as the wind does.
